HELLEBORES: A Progression of Bloom

Hellebore flowering is a natural progression: early in the period colored buds appear, followed by a succession of open blossoms that age gracefully. Each bar reflects the approximate bloom period for the variety; expect fully open flowers midperiod. By planting different varieties with overlapping bloom times, you can have color from December through April.

BLOOM IN THE POT

Bloom times are as observed under our production regime in the Pacific Northwest. The plants are field grown from potting through the fall, and moved to cold greenhouses for winter protection and finishing.
